The clocks go back one hour on Halloween

OCTOBER 2021

Welcome to our autumn edition of the magazine. I wonder if you are like me, where every time I go past another brown field it feels like a step nearer to winter? Sometimes when we are putting the light on at 4.30pm it feels as if it's already here, but at least the weather is holding up fairly well.

Some brighter news is that at least more things are happening in the village. It is a long time since we have seen cars parked outside the village hall and the doors open. Last night we drove past and lights were on in both halls so things are definitely looking better.

A warm welcome to anyone who has just moved into the village, we hope you will soon settle in and enjoy your life here. On the back cover of the magazine you will find some important phone numbers that you might need.

To anyone who is leaving for pastures new we hope that you will be happy in your new surroundings

On the last Thursday of each month the Parish Council Chairman and Clerk will be available at the coffee morning at St Luke's Church from 10.00pm.

Stickney History Exhibition proved to be a success once again when visitors came from near and far. There were lots of local familiar faces and many new ones.

It was just great to see people meeting up and reminiscing about the past. Some learning about how the village used to be and several researching their family trees.

Many were amazed at the amount of information we had, this has been collected over the last 14 years and we still are finding more.

Donations of £320 were split between The Lincs and Notts Air Ambulance and St Luke's Church.

We would like to thank everyone who came and helped to make the weekend a great success.

Martin and Bev Gosling

Stickney Gardening Club

The Stickney Gardening Club will reopen on Tuesday 26 October at the Youth Club, doors open at 7.00pm for 7.30pm start.

Our speaker will be Jenny Kirby, a local lady well known in the area who is always knowledgeable on gardens. Her theme will be an Autumn Garden which will prove to be an entertaining evening, as always.

New guests are always welcome, so come along for a free taster evening and enjoy a friendly evening, followed by refreshments and the chance to have a chat.

For more information contact Kay 01205 480769

The Horbling Ladies

Stickney Luncheon Club, as you are all aware, will not be reopening. This is due to lots of changes in health and family commitments, mine included, with our volunteers.

The funds that the club held have now been divided for four different charities, chosen by our ladies, each receiving £647.25:

Marie Curie
Lincs Air Ambulance
Skegness RNLI
Salvation Army in Boston

The equipment that we had was sold and the money raised, £535.00, we gave to St Luke's Church, Stickney.

We hope that you like the charities that we have chosen.

We would like to thank all our members for the loyal support that you always gave to the Luncheon Club during the years that we ran the club.

Best wishes and thank you again

STICKNEY THURSDAY CLUB

The Thursday Club, for the Over Sixties in the village, has been in existence for many years and has provided residents with a friendly and enjoyable afternoon once a month. Unfortunately, over the past two or three years numbers have dropped considerably because people have moved away, died or become housebound.

As it has not been possible to recruit new members, the existing members, at a recent meeting, agreed that the Club was no longer viable and that regretfully it should close. We would like to thank Kings for providing the bus and all who have helped in any way towards the success of the club.

The funds will be divided between four local charities agreed by the members present

Our next meeting is at 1:30pm on Monday 11 October in the Community Centre, Church Road, Stickford.

The local Body Shop consultant will be talking about the history of The Body Shop and also displaying and talking about various products.

Our usual tea and cakes will be served whilst everyone has a chance to chat!

Visitors welcome £2.00

Gardening Tips for October

October is the month when it feels as if the year is starting to turn. Days are shorter, the light is less bright and temperatures are on the down, leaves are falling and will soon represent a major investment in our time in clearing them up. We could get our first frosts, killing off all but the hardiest of plants. There are still some jobs to occupy the keen gardener, so here are some suggestions as to what we could be getting on with as the days become increasingly shorter.

{1} If you fancy broad-beans next year, now is the time to put an over-wintering variety in. Although hardy, they don't appreciate sitting in water, so if your soil is heavy it might be wise to sow early next year.

{2} Sow some beet leaf spinach early in the month and at the same time consider putting in some Chinese cabbage. These form dense barrel shaped or conical heads and it is worth looking out for a bolt resistant variety.

{3} Japanese onion sets can just about be sown in October. They are hardy, short-daylight onions and will bulb up about a month earlier than the main crop variety. They don't store very well so it is wise not to grow too many. Protect them with a cloche or netting from pigeons who delight in pulling them from the ground.

{4} Although perhaps a little early, garlic could go in now. This might safeguard you from having an outside job to do in November should the weather be nasty.

{5} Check Brussel Sprout plants to make sure they're firm in the ground. Apparently wind-rock breaks the tiny hairs on the roots that take in nutrients. Earthing up a few inches or treading in around the base, firming the ground, should be sufficient.

{6} It is not too early to consider where you intend to plant your runner beans next year. Start a bean trench by digging it out and lining with newspaper or thin cardboard and add compostable kitchen waste or lawn clippings before covering with soil next year.

In conclusion, a quote from Peggy Toney Horton, an American author, which sums up the beauty of October:

"Ah, September! You are the doorway to the season that awakens my soul but I must confess that I love you only because you are a prelude to my beloved October."

She also noted that: "I know I was writing stories when I was five. I don't know what I did before that. Just loafed I suppose."

Happy Gardening
